

MOSLEM FESTIVAL AT WOKING.

The Moslem festival of Id-ul-Fitr, marking the conclusion of the month of fasting, was celebrated at the Mosque, Woking, yesterday. Among those present were Lord Headley, Princess Galitzine, Priscilla Countess Annesley, the Estonian Minister, Prince Varnvaidya (of the Siamese Legation), and representatives of the Afghan and Egyptian Legations and students from the Royal Military College at Camberley. An address was delivered by Abdul Majid (Imam of the Mosque), who urged that the religion of Islam was deserving of study, not alone because it commanded the allegiance of 300 millions of people, but also because, if the British Empire was to find its bearings in the world of the future, it would need to understand the meaning of that great religion. English people were perhaps not alive to the gravity of the fact that the destiny of the British Empire was linked with millions of Moslems living under the British flag.
